Telescoping Boom Lift for Letchworth State Park

No.	IFB Section	IFB Page	Question	Response
1			I was just reviewing your bid information. Thank you for including us and I just wanted to clarify one thing before I started working on it. The bid was titled as an articulated aerial/boom lift. Articulated is a certain style of lift. It's also called a knuckle boom sometimes. SkyJack and several others make articulated lifts but the SJ66T model is actually not articulated. That's what we call a telescopic boom or more specifically a telescopic with a jib. The SJ66T is a popular model so no problem if that's what you want I can definitely quote that I just want to make sure you get the lift you want. And really it's not that one is bad and one is good it's just that they're different and it depends on what you're doing with it. And also I have people call every day that don't really get the difference so it's completely understandable. When it's a rental though it's not the end of the world if you get the wrong one. If that happens you can pay a freight charge and swap it. That's not so easy with a purchase. So I guess I'm just wanting to confirm that the SJ66T or equivalent is what you'd really like.	OPRHP has confirmed that the IFB was inaccurately named and Amedement #1 was completed to update the title of the IFB on 1/21/25.
