

Washington's Headquarters
State Historic Site

Presents:

2025 MARTHA WASHINGTON WOMAN OF HISTORY AWARD

Washington's Headquarters State Historic Site opened in 1850, making it the first publicly owned historic site in the nation. The Commander-in-Chief, General George Washington, established Headquarters at Jonathan and Tryntje Hasbrouck's fieldstone farmhouse from April 1, 1782 until August 19, 1783. This became the longest of his stays at any one of his over 165 headquarters during the 8½ years of the Revolution.

While here, the General, his wife, officers, and free and enslaved servants lived and worked in close quarters as a steady stream of guests came to meet with the Washingtons. During the critical months spent in Newburgh, Washington maintained a strong Army with eventual plans to disband it. He negotiated a contentious Congress, while dealing with problems of supply, training, pay, morale and all other things that affected his troops. It was here that he rejected a suggestion of an American monarchy, defused a potential mutiny among the army, and offered advice on the future of the new republic considered to be the cornerstone of the US Constitution. While at Newburgh, in order to recognize the heroism of enlisted men, the Commander-in-Chief created the Badge of Military Merit, the forerunner of the Purple Heart medal. On April 19, 1783, General Washington's order for a "cessation of hostilities" was announced and he then dealt with concerns attendant to disbandment of the Army.

An essential part of this equation was the presence of Martha Washington. Each winter during the War, Martha would travel to headquarters to be with her husband. She utilized her vast life experiences to assist in the war effort. In Newburgh, Martha Washington relieved several responsibilities from the shoulders of her husband. She helped the aides-de-camp copy letters and orders; became the headquarters' hostess to the many dignitaries and individuals looking to meet the General; embroidered her dining room chair covers for Mount Vernon; and maintained a garden.

Each year, in honor of Martha Washington, Washington's Headquarters State Historic Site presents the "Martha Washington Woman of History Award." The recipient of the award must be a woman who has demonstrated a contribution towards the education and preservation of history in the Hudson Valley. The recipient will be expected to attend "The General's Lady," a Women's History Month program, held each year in March, during which she will receive her award. In addition, the recipient's name will receive a place of honor on the plaque showing past recipients of this award, and she will be invited to be part of the Selection Committee for future awardees.
