c = artillery placement e = houses where savages were posted f = Jäger and English g = rebel corps posted in the woods
 h = American Volunteers
 i = the enemy
 j = high haystacks behind which the enemy hid k = attack by Grenadier Batt. Bärner l = forward-most position of Gren. Batt. Bärner m = watermill; "Col. Skin" with a few savages n = where Baum was wounded o = location where the corps was taken prisoners p = dragoons
 t = watermill; "Col. Skin" with a few savages

I could not find the letters b, c, d and p for Baum artillery positions. The canon was most likely sent from "c" to the top of the hill; the smithy "m" stood on the west side of the bridge. See note to letter c.
Position von einem Detachement des Obrist-Lieut: Baum welches den 16ten August 1777 von einem Rebellischen Chor unter orders des Colonel Starck zu Williams Cook ohnweit Beningtown geschlagen und gefangen worden.

a. Dragoner
b. die Canonen No. 2 welche auf orders in wehrender Affair von dem Platz

i. Die Feinde
l. Hohe Hauffen Heu wohinter sich die Feinde versteckten
m. Schmiede wo die Canons reparirt worden.
n. Retrait des Obristlt. Baum, und wo Er plesirt

Ad m: he clearly writes “reparirt” i.e. repaired but I am thinking he means “repaired” as in “to repair to = to move to”.

Position of a detachment of Lt.-Col. Baum which on 16 August 1777 was defeated and taken prisoner by a rebel corps under the command of Colonel Stark at Williams Cook near Bennington.

a. Dragoons
b. The cannon which during the battle was ordered (by Baum)
c. to be moved from (its) place (c.) d. detachments from various regiments with the canon at d. (not on map, probably at bridge)
e. houses where Canadians and savages were posted.
f. Jäger and English positions (Fraser)
g. Detachment Light Infantry
h. American volunteers
i. The enemies
l. High piles of hay behind which the enemy hid
m. Smithy where the canon were repaired
