BIRDS OF CAUMSETT STATE HISTORIC PARK

CHECKLIST OF THE BIRDS OF CAUMSETT STATE HISTORIC PARK

Overlooking Lloyd Harbor with beachfront along the Long Island Sound, Caumsett State Historic Park includes 1,600 acres of woodlands, rocky shores and salt marshes. It is the former estate of Marshall Field III, founder and publisher of the New York P.M. and Chicago Sun-Times newspapers. The Matinecock Indian name he gave to his estate, Caumsett, translates into, "Place by the sharp rock".

The park is host to over 200 species of birds. The natural woodlands attract migrating song birds in the spring and fall. Endangered species nest along the shoreline in the summer months. Ducks are often seen in the waters bordering the park. Bluebirds and sparrows can be found in the park's fields. Due to its significance to birds, portions of the park have been designated Bird Conservation Areas.

For further information and to report rare birds, please call
(631) 423 - 1770
